- 10 different Effects - New Textures, Backgrounds and Highlights - Text editing tools - Advanced Tone Mapping and Photo blending - Panoramic photos - Photo Editing - New Timeless Photo Frames and Frames from Brushes - Animated Photo Collage - Animated Photo Brushes - Support for DC Media Center and DC Animated Movies Here is a photo I shot a couple of weeks ago in Texas. The clouds were so very lovely, so I wanted to use them in a photo. I used DC Painter Pro for a few minor adjustments and the results were very nice. If you want to purchase the film, I will receive 30 percent if you make a purchase. If you already own a copy, you can use the coupon code "sunphotoadict" to get 30 percent off the film. Please be sure to visit my website at www.sunphotoadict.com. I took these photo using my Canon T5i digital SLR. Then I used the eye dropper tool to select my main subject. The ACR has a fill tool and I used it to select a brighter part of the picture and copied it onto the main subject. The advantage of this type of adjustment is that there are no visible edges where you selected. If you like my work, please subscribe to my blog, follow me on Facebook or follow me on Twitter. I took these photos at the Ocala Butterfly and Nature Center. The beautiful blues of the trolley track contrasted with the orange of the trolley. I used a tripod to get the photos of the tracks. I like this photo because it makes the colors look like they are alive. I also like the trolley because it gives a cool look to the picture. If you want to purchase the film, I will receive 30 percent if you make a purchase. If you already own a copy, you can use the coupon code "sunphotoadict" to get 30 percent off the film. Please be sure to visit my website at www.sunphotoadict.com. I took these photos with my Canon T3i digital camera. I used a tripod and a remote release to make these photos. The first photo is a close-up of the swan I had just found at a park in Ocala, Florida. I used the fill tool to make it brighter and the skin tones more visible. The water was a challenge to photograph. In the second photo, the swan is

DC Painter Pro

----- A free commercial product from Pixelmonic from version 6.0, 5.0.2 & 6.0 can be downloaded at: - 2013-10-13 This version of the Digital Painter plugin has a bug where when painting on a "diffuse"-mode image, the brush size will be adjusted to fit the size of the image. This applies to all brushes. The only solution is to redo the brush size. - 2013-06-17 - Fixed a bug with the "pattern"-tool - the menu to enter a coordinate for the starting point was not working (no error was given) - 2013-05-26 - Fixed a bug where the "pattern"-tool had the same size as the brush, which isn't what it should be (fixed for both brush and pattern tool). - 2013-05-06 - Updated the brush tool - faster and more precise. - 2013-04-29 - Added an option to use a brush pattern that adjusts itself with the image size in "pattern" mode. - 2013-04-18 - Fixed a bug where the brush settings are saved for "all" brushes (instead of individual ones). - 2013-04-10 - The brush size can be changed in two ways. First by clicking on the brush and then on the image. Second with the "size"-menu in the brush window. - 2013-04-01 - The brush size in pixels can be changed with the left mouse button and with the "size"-menu in the brush window. How to use: ----- In the menu on the left are three options: - "active brush" - paint with this brush - no need to have it selected for the brush is used in all image modes (shading, painting etc) - "save active brush" - saves the brush settings - "delete active brush" - removes the active brush from the brush list and deletes the brush settings This all can be done with the button on the top right - "brush"-button. Just click on a brush and use the button to set the size or save settings
